

Leaving the Battlefield

You are the only one, survivor
Your comrades are all dead
Looking at all the human corpses
You recognize no enemy
Wonder which side has succeeded
While there is no side at all
Dare not even asking
Was it worth it all

No more screams, deadly silence
Blood will mix with tears
Lasting remembrance
Leaving the battlefield

Your gun serves you as crutched stick
Your clothing is all bandage
Your skin is scarred all over now
The same way is your soul
They said that you would
Save your country
By being the first to attack
Too late that you now realize
That that all were lies

No more screams, deadly silence
Blood will mix with tears
Lasting remembrance
Leaving the battlefield

The battle lasted three days long
You thought it was a year
You didn't count the men you shot
It must have been one thousand
How many widows have you made
You dare not to imagine
It must be very hard for you
To live on any more

No more screams, deadly silence
Blood will mix with tears
Lasting remembrance
Leaving the battlefield
